

A message . . .

Today, the beginning of 2010, we come to a turning point in this treatise on Enlightenment and a word of explanation is in order for those who have followed it to this point. This is the last account of ordinary Enlightenment.

The next and final entry of the book, an essay, which will continue from tomorrow to Easter, will take Enlightenment to an uncommon level, the level of actual awakening, for those able to enter into it. This is not the same as the journey of illuminating joy in realization of the basic Truths, albeit some of them difficult to grasp and live with. This is definitely not intended for the general reader, but rather is only for one who has an intense desire to 'awaken' and 'to know' the full truth of the nature of reality, no matter the consequences. The truth is shocking, if one really 'gets it!' So do not read on simply out of curiosity. You may not be able to take it in and forget it as added mundane information. 'Awakening' is not for the general populace but rather for one who is 'finished' with life at the level of ordinary human being.

What comes next? It will vary with the individual. But I can tell you, you will never be the same and your life too will be undoubtedly altered by entering into this understanding. For those who continue on, I wish you well in the passage. Namaste, Tara

ENLIGHTENMENT by Tara

THE WORLD BEGUN

She sits alone before a rising sun,
Patiently weaving, finally done.
A seamless garment
Of threads of light spun,
Drawn of thought essences
Long since begun;
And as she steps into it,

A life is donned . . .
