

A thought of the day in passing . . .

*Taking Enlightenment too quickly is like . . .
burning your home and business as you leave on your vacation.*

AFTER ENLIGHTENMENT

by Tara

ON TOP OF THE WORLD

or

(Enlightenment's Lament)

Sitting on top of the world;
Where is there to go?
Having pure happiness, all knowledge;
What is left to seek, to do, to know?

How will I spend each day
With no desire, neither goal?
No accidents, but no surprises,
When one takes up life's control.

With none to share your new reality
(Sorely threatened should you try).
They're afraid of the unknown;
And their egos' fear to die.
With nothing to ask, or complain of others,
What's left to say? One's so . . . 'alone.'

Yet . . . to 'take their poison'
Is a betrayal of one's soul.
And, to pretend the world is real,
Begins to make it so!
Why be so fast to get there . . .

"The journey is the Tao!"
