

A thought of the day in passing

On the relative reality . . .

*"Duty – learn it early; learn it well"

It would seem to me that . . .

It's the duty of children
to their parents and to themselves to learn their lessons well, and use the gifts of education they are given that they in their turn, can provide for themselves, and become in their maturity an asset to society as well.

It's the duty of parents to their children and to themselves, to well take care of their fiscal and personal health:
that they live to see their children educated, married, and on their own in their chosen life,
and they in their old age be not a burden to any or all.

And this has little to do with Enlightenment.

Much to do with enlightened living.

Paraphrased from Dickens; ' Little Dorret*

September 3, 2009 Day 33

By Tara, all rights reserved by Bhagavan Fdn.

The book; ENLIGHTENMENT, will be reprinted page by page daily on this site free and in full. For the less patient, the book may be purchased in full from Bookstore.

ENLIGHTENMENT
by Tara

Enlightenment is only a shift in identification.

From a small personal i to . . .

'I AM THAT I AM' and 'ALL THERE IS'.

September 3, 2009 Day 33

From the book; ENLIGHTENMENT, all rights reserved by Bhagavan Fdn