AFTER ENLIGHTENMENT, WHAT?

by Tara

LIFE ON THE SURFACE AND 'THE INNERVIEW'

He and she; they disagree
Fur may fly, but they can say good-bye
Have their say and go on their way.

While with you and me
The experience proceeds quite differently
Though on the surface it's the same,
The conflict's one internal.

A thought of the day in passing . . .

To become 'All There Is' or One with God . . .
Should, perhaps, be considered only when one is done with life.
It is not for everybody . . . as a life experience . . .
One can cause oneself a great deal of trouble.

Moreover, there are infinite possibilities for a life beyond simple ignorance in ego.
Its best to know ones limits; what one wants and is best suited for.
This is given far too little attention in the spiritual community; where most follow blindly what they do not know, and where they are going, less.
